Mary Raymond's blue eyes looked suspiciously misty as she solemnly regarded her chum. What am I going to do without you, you mean, corrected Marjorie Dean, with a wistful smile. Please, please don't let's talk of it. I simply can't bear it. One, two—only two more weeks now, sighed Mary. You'll surely write to me, Marjorie? Of course, silly girl, returned Marjorie, patting her friend's arm affectionately. I'll write at least once a week. Marjorie Dean's merry face looked unusually sober as she walked down the corridor beside Mary and into the locker room of the Franklin High School. The two friends put on their wraps almost in silence. The majority of the girl students of the big city high school had passed out some little time before. Marjorie had lingered for a last talk with Miss Fielding, who taught English and was the idol of the school, while Mary had hung about outside the classroom to wait for her chum. It seemed to Mary that the greatest sorrow of her sixteen years had come. Marjorie, her sworn ally and confidante, was going away for good and all.
