IN STRICKEN LIBERIA: A PHOTOJOURNAL

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Large Print. 216 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .When Margaret Mead said never to doubt the power of a small group to change the world, she spoke directly to the author of IN STRICKEN LIBERIA Our Story Nancy J V Machin, a former teacher in Liberia, West Africa, for two years, in the 1970s, met Daniel F Poawalio, one of her students, and a 30-year friendship developed. Daniel writes a compelling introduction. Although separated by oceans, the two kept connected. Through Liberia s fourteen year civil war, displacement, life in a refugee camp, and the return back home, a committed friendship evolved and flourished. Soon Friends of Daniel network was created to help them both out baskets of joy, care parcels of books, and prayer circles. The cross-cultural story became more personal as the family named one of their girls, Nancy Kumba, after Nancy, now their American Mom. Back in Monrovia, the capital, both Daniel and his wife worked in professional downtown jobs. Daniel even attended a Master s program in Peace Studies at night. Education was always paramount. Then Ebola struck in 2014. Everything turned upside-down, as the dying littered the streets and the villagers faced the health care workers in space suits. An intensive awareness campaign involved all West Africans, and later, Americans, on this unprecedented deadly disease. Schools shut down for months, hand-washing rituals became the new normal, with new burial practices a necessity for health. The goal is a Ebola-free zone in all of West Africa. Liberia is in the forefront of this global crisis. What makes a difference is village to village sharing and respect, and in continued, united friendship a teacher and her student and family share and...
